The third season of Survivor: Millennials vs. Gen X premiered on CBS on September 25, 2013, and concluded on May 30, 2014. The season was filmed from January 21 to May 21, 2014, and aired in the United States under the television network CBS. The 39th season of Survivor featured 30 returning castaways and 10 new castaways, divided into two tribes of 20 each. The two new castaways were Alison Raynor and Brendon Villegas. The older contestants came from the previous two seasons, Millennials vs. Gen X (2012) and Millennials vs. Gen X: Millennials vs. Gen X (2011). In this season, 15 men and 15 women competed for the title of Sole Survivor. The contestants were divided into two tribes, Millennials (titled "Post-Millennials" in the promotional campaign) and Gen X (titled "Gen-Xers" in the promotional campaign), both of which contained ten members. The contestants competed in various challenges, with the winning tribe controlling the first-place prize of at the end of the season. Alison Raynor was the last remaining member of the Millennials tribe after eleven of her tribe members were voted out over the course of the season. Brendon Villegas was the last remaining member of the Gen X tribe after ten of his tribe members were voted out. In the end, Raynor defeated Villegas and became the 39th season's Sole Survivor.

Season summary The 40th season of Survivor begins with the contestants arriving at their new location, a former hotel located in Henderson, Nevada, with the dual objectives of winning $1 million in cash and the title of Sole Survivor. The season is immediately divided into two separate groups: the "Post-Millennials" with 10 former Millennials (all from the first season) and the "Gen-Xers" with 10 former Gen Xers (all from the second season). The two tribes convene, and the players go to their respective tribes' camps, where they begin to strategize for the upcoming challenges. The Gen Xers' camp is named "Paradise Island", while the Millennials' camp is named "The Grove". At the very beginning of the season, the tribes start to fight amongst each other, with the exception of Elizabeth Markley, who switches sides at the middle of the first episode. Despite a difficult start, the Gen Xers quickly form a tight alliance and begin to formulate their plan of attack on the Millennials.

Things don't go quite as usual when Harvey and Mike have a disagreement with a pushy U.S. Attorney, Scotty and Harvey can't seem to.
