A: It depends on what you mean by "flush". If you're talking about the "flush" you get after eating too much and then the "flush" you get when you exercise, then no, coffee won't help you with that. However, if you're talking about the physical effect of caffeine on the body, the answer is yes. Caffeine inhibits the reuptake of acetylcholine and norepinephrine. If you're doing a strenuous cardio workout, the endorphins and dopamine released as a result of that cardio should put you in a good mood. Caffeine (and other stimulants) can help with that. As far as the "flush" that you get when you drink coffee, I believe it's mostly caused by something called caffeine acidosis. It's not necessarily a good thing, but I've never heard of anyone actually dying from it.
