A case of acute intermittent porphyria complicated by acute icteric porphyria. Acute porphyria is an acute disorder of the heme biosynthetic pathway. Some subtypes of acute porphyria, including acute intermittent porphyria and hereditary coproporphyria, are potentially fatal. A 55-year-old man was admitted to our hospital with acute pancreatitis and acute hepatitis. His blood chemistry revealed cholestasis. Liver biopsy, which was performed, showed no histological abnormality. However, these findings were not sufficient to make a diagnosis of acute porphyria. During his in-hospital stay, he developed confusion and a severe attack of hypoxemia. The diagnosis of acute intermittent porphyria was finally confirmed by the presence of increased urine levels of delta-aminolevulinic acid (ALA) and porphyria-specific neurologic abnormalities. The patient was successfully treated with hemodialysis and treatment with hydroxocobalamin and prednisolone. This case suggests that acute porphyria should be considered in the differential diagnosis of acute hepatic dysfunction, even in patients without symptoms of acute porphyria.Q: Is there a way to access a specific child in a child class of another class? XArp is a software that is designed to identify and prevent ARP attacks from taking place. This is achieved by using two methods: - Virtualization of Ethernet (by virtualizing the physical IP address) - Identification of ARP cache (looks for ARP cache poisoning or spoofing) Recommendations: - Segregation of ARP traffic between LAN and WAN (with appropriate equipment) - Use a virtualization strategy which includes mapping physical IP address into virtual IP address

Plot: On a plane to Brazil, a young couple is murdered by a man with no recollection of his past. Caught up in a race against time, their desperate search for the murderer will take them to the depths of the Brazilian jungle, to a research facility that houses a terrifying brainwashing machine and a horrifying surgery team, and into an underground lair of depraved scientists to pinpoint the culprits. Story summary name: A scientist under fire... director: Werner Holtzmann : A scientist under fire... director: Werner Holtzmann :...Considerations on the transrectal ultrasound localization of the prostate: efficacy and safety. The transrectal ultrasound (TRUS) is the method of choice for the diagnosis of prostate cancer, but there is still a limited accuracy of its localization. We compared the TRUS-predicted localization of the prostate with the location determined by the radical prostatectomy specimens in 43 consecutive patients. The accuracy of the TRUS in predicting the location of the prostatic apex, the presence or absence of a median lobe, the location of the junction between the peripheral zone and the transition zone, the presence or absence of anatomic variations of the prostatic stromal segment, and the distance between the margin of the reference image of the prostate and the apex of the prostatic stroma were evaluated. The accuracy of the TRUS was compared with the results of biopsies and the clinical and pathological assessment. The mean distance between the margin of the reference image of the prostate and the apex of the prostatic stroma measured by TRUS was 15.5 mm. TRUS-predicted positions were correlated with biopsy and histopathology results in 43 out of 43 patients. The mean distance between the margin of the reference image of the prostate and the apex of the prostatic stroma was positively correlated with the final prostate weight ($r = 0.72$, p Arp poisoning attacks can be used to mess with a victim's network. All you need is a program that will quickly respond to ARP requests with well-known IP addresses, for instance, the IP of your own computer. This program does not require any special permissions and has a user-friendly interface. It does not have any limitations so you can use it on LAN, WAN and WLAN networks. How to use it: 1) Download and install the program to a designated folder. 2) In the program, navigate to Arp Pointer in the menu. 3) Have your internet connection available and click "Start". 4) Choose which IP address you want to use for ARP Pointer and click "Start". 5) Wait and enjoy watching the ARP requests.

A First Look at the X.509 Certificates Manager... X.509 is a well-known protocol that supports public key management. All X.509 certificates include a public key, and they are usually signed with a private key, as well. Sometimes the public key is encrypted and includes a password for decryption. In this article, we will take a look at the X.509 Certificates Manager that supports Windows 8 and Windows Server 2012 operating systems. The user interface may be tricky at first, but most of the time, it is not a big deal. Features: It includes almost all the features of the standard Windows X.509 Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) manager, including:

- Search
- Manage certificates and certificates' revocation
- Filter certificates by date and by user
- Issue certificates
- Import certificates
- Export certificates
- Import and export public keys
- Delete certificates and public keys
- Decode and encode public keys
- Export and Import Certificate Revocation Lists (CRLs)
- Manage X.509 Certificate Revocation Lists (CRLs)
- Display certificates and CRLs for a given certificate
- View a certificate's details
- Get certificates

Manage certificates in a group FIPS 140-2 Certificates for Windows 7 and Windows Server 2008 R2 This article will help you understand how to generate Windows Server 2008 R2 and Windows 7 FIPS 140-2 certificates.
