description, I felt like I had learned something new and interesting about the great themes. I appreciate your hard work and time you spend doing this, you have shared such a great article, please keep up the good work as like to read more. Thank you. Hey, this post was written by a fellow blogger and I think it is one of the best posts ever. Very interesting and knowledgeable. I will definitely recommend to my friends. It is a very valuable post.

Thank you for sharing. What, no more Egg McMuffin for breakfast? No more 4 a.m. runs to McDonald's? No more breakfast meetings with upper management to discuss how many breakfast sandwiches you are going to sell this quarter? Prepare for a sad, sad day at McDonald's. The world's biggest hamburger chain is cutting almost 14,000 jobs at its stores and restaurants around the world, starting in the U.S. and Canada, with reductions in its plans for Canada beginning in September. Canada's location-based data firm Frugal Dad estimates there are about 119,000 McDonald's restaurants in Canada, though that is lower than the 140,000 in the U.S. and is likely due to McDonald's having a more limited presence in Canada (it has only 32 Canadian stores, compared with 800 in the U.S.). The cuts are part of an effort to trim $3.8 billion in annual costs by the end of the year, while
