Nicely performing app

This is a neat app, only that I wish it had a calendar by which you could sync it with your Google Calendar and other calendar apps.

Ease of use: Very easy to use, and great support as well.

Novelties: An excellent program that does what it says it does, but with the added advantage of being able to open multiple files at once. This makes the overall use of the app more efficient.

Drawbacks: The application can be a bit slow for large files (60-80+ line) for that very reason, but that hardly bothers the user.

Great File Transfer Tool

Ease of use: Vov Log Analyzer is a solid program. It is easy to navigate and has a very user friendly interface. It looks clean and works like a charm.

Novelties: Vov Log Analyzer does an excellent job of file transfer. The app can help transfer files from one PC to another and then it can also copy files to removable drives like USB drives, DVDs, etc.

Drawbacks:

There is no calendar feature which was a big disappointment

Q: how to make scrollview content as dynamic? I am developing one Android app, I have used ScrollView as a container with one component in it. In that one component I have some textViews and Images. The problem is I want to load these components with some animation. Now I have loaded those components but the textView and Image should be as scrollable. It means By touching the screen the components should scroll. I have written some animation for it But I can not do that. Are there any simple solutions?

A: In ScrollView you can dynamically set `View.setVerticalScrollBarEnabled(boolean enabled)`; OR `View.setVerticalScrollBarEnabled(int scroll_bars)`; to make ScrollView scrollable with out touching the content view. For more info read this ScrollView with
