Please contact for more information, news teamQ: In MATLAB, how can I force a dataype error (e.g. trying to use a command that may not be supported) The following works perfectly fine with the default Java versions of MATLAB, but when the versions are changed to the latest versions (and I have updated the necessary licenses), this code throws the datatype error. Is there a way to get it to run with the latest versions? `[x, t] = ode45(@f, [0 0.15], [-200 100], t1);` The error message when running the above code is: Error using ode45>setDomainBoundary (line 531) Operation not implemented for this ODE solver. See the documentation for more information. Error in ode23t (line 33) `Y = y0(2);` A: I faced the same problem. I found this post that seems to be related. I resolved the problem by changing the Java version and using the most recent license. I hope this helps! *** QUESTION *** How do I improve my con? I get down voted for no reason, for example on Arqade I'm not even the most seasoned vet or anything, the down votes are ridiculous. Does anyone else have this problem? *** ANSWER *** The votes don't have much to do with whether or not you're succeeding as a person and more to do with whether you're succeeding as a game. A...great...american...rat...thing...er...an...err...a...buffoon... You're a fantastic, well rounded human being who has great potential. Even though, oddly, you're voting you don't want to play your favorite game, the fact that you've achieved so much in the past 5 years of your life is a testament to your character and abilities as a human being. That's great, and you're on the right path. A...disturbing...blue...dragon... You're a loser, who
