I want to do a session timeout, so that the user is logged in for 24 hours only. I'm using Ajax login using AJAX Login form ( Currently in my site, if the user tries to logout before the 24-hour time is over, he/she is still redirected to the login page. Please help. A: You can simply set the cookie path to be logged-out. To do that, use: `setcookie("user", "", time() - 604800, "usersession", "", true);` To extend it to 24 hours, you will have to track the time and check if it has passed 24 hours, so: `$login_time = time(); setcookie("user", "", $login_time - 604800, "usersession", "", true);` So, you'll have to set it every time the user logs in, and check the cookie to see if it's passed 24 hours, like this: `// set cookie for 24 hours $login_time = time(); setcookie("user", "", $login_time - 604800, "usersession", "", true); if ($this->input->is_ajax_request()) $this->input->set_cookie(array("user"=>$user_data));` Then, just check it in your AJAX login form. At least 30 are dead after a massive wildfire in Northern California and more than 1,500 are missing, officials said. The fire has been burning for at least four days and has destroyed at least 17 homes, said California State Fire Chief Scott McLean. He said the fire was out of control, but that
