This whole episode started because me, Ross, Sara, and Frannie went on a weekend road trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas. It was a weekend trip that we decided to take together. This is my first time going on a road trip with friends since I moved to Chicago. Ross and Sara have been out on a road trip like this before and I was excited to have this experience myself. There was a few reasons why we decided to do it. First, I needed to get out of Chicago for a weekend. Second, I have a few friends that I hadn't see in a long time. Last and most important, I knew that it would be fun and a refreshing break from the everyday life. Our only plans for the weekend were to stay at my parents house, visit a hot springs, and hang out. We only planned to drive from Chicago to Hot Springs and it took us 5 hours of driving time. We only had a vague idea of what we would do on our way to Hot Springs. We assumed that we'd find food and also stay in a hot springs. Once

That feels like a good thing, but it is often compared to a "historical relic", which is a waste of time. Actually quite often people think of the languages of today as competing with the languages of yesterday._ ~~~ fingerprinter This is actually a pretty good way to gauge the success of something. When people are comparing it to Java, that's a sure sign that it's doing well. Sometimes I'm concerned about languages, they often act like they
