I have also tried using File.exists() in a separate program, which returns false as well. My code is as follows: import java.io.File; import java.io.IOException; public class TestFile { public static void main(String[] args) throws IOException { File f = new File("C:\\Users\\darrin\\Desktop\\test.txt"); if(f.exists()) System.out.println("File exists"); else System.out.println("File does not exist"); } } This returns File does not exist My test.txt was on a USB mounted drive and therefore I was using the below code to access it. try
