Is it true that a toric blowup of a line in \mathbb{A}^n is a line? The case of smooth blowup is well understood. Any line in a smooth variety is the zero set of a non-zero regular function on the variety. Therefore in a smooth blowup, if the zero set of the regular function is blown up, it is a curve. But I am not sure about non-smooth blowup. This is because, I am not sure that the regular function has a zero set which is the blown up version of the zero set of the regular function. For example, when the fan Δ in the above example is the fan of $\mathbb{A}^2 - \mathbb{A}^2 - \mathbb{A}^2 + \mathbb{A}^2$, the line $(1,0,0,0)$ has a regular function $x_1^2 - x_2^2$. My understanding is that it is not a zero set in the smooth blowup of the variety, so it is not the zero set of a regular function. Therefore the line itself is not blown up in the smooth blowup. Does anyone know if a line can be blown up by a blowup with non-smooth center? Thanks. A: So, the answer is yes. In fact, this is true for any Gorenstein toric Fano variety. And this is Proposition 7.2 of the following paper, At the beginning of Section 7, I have used this Lemma for an explicit toric computation of the minimal volume of F
