Chuck Grassley didn't like being stuck outside a Spokane County caucus. Former state Rep. Amy Koch was content with the cushy confines of her campaign headquarters. Early primary voting is making busy schedules uncomfortable for candidates who will compete for three state legislative seats in the August primary election, as well as statewide races for Gov. Jay Inslee and U.S. Senate. "It's been a little hectic, and I've spent a lot of time in the car," said Koch, who is seeking a second term as Spokane County commissioner. "I'm making up for it now." Koch, now director of Spokane's regional development corporation, is leading the pack in the county race, and has a fundraising edge over two of her seven challengers, including Jerry Soto. But Soto has raised more than double Koch's total since the beginning of the year. He told The Inlander earlier this week that he raised $37,000 during the quarter, including $16,000 in March. On his website, he says he has received $33,000 in donations. Soto's campaign said Wednesday the most recent deadline to report campaign cash was the end of April. As of the end of March, Koch had raised $27,200 in small donations. "It's going to be a fierce primary. Everyone is going to work hard," Soto said. "It�
