V360 Player is a free, easy to use application that can help you play and convert 360-degree videos on the fly. The program offers you a simple user interface, enables you to set visual filters for your content and supports online stream playback. The program can play directly from a file, as well as convert videos to support multiple formats. With the help of this program, you can be equipped with all the tools you need to handle 360-degree videos successfully. You can try this software for free to see if it suits your needs. Features: 360-degree videos playback Play 360-degree videos directly from a file or convert them into a separate file Optionally apply visual filters to your content Change settings for UPD communication Change view projection mode Select default video plugin used to render your file Notes: this software is free please refer to the readme.txt or the Readme.txt file for installation instructions Whats New program has been completely re-written as a native application instead of a simple exe installer. A: the free version of the app offers few limitations compared to the paid version : you can convert only 2 minutes per file the file can only be watched/played in the "down & up" direction no support for netflix, but according to their website, it's due to the lack of a free license key you can read more about that here: The paid version of the app allows you to convert unlimited files and play them in any direction, as well as supports netflix. A: Already use to use YouTube Videos to 360 degrees? VLC's Video plugin is supported. If you have that installed, you can always use it to play it and then export the videos or your sources as VLC formats. How to do this? Install a plugin of VLC and create new playlist. Open VLC as usual Open File > Open URL Create the playlist like any media you want, and in the left panel, right click and "Create Folder" or "Create File", to where you want to export. For example, make a playlist named "SomeOfMy360 Videos" and create a folder
