long-running true crime show was renewed for a 10th season in January and now the show's creator Adi Hasak is looking into bringing a web series to the premium VOD service. [Update: TVLine has learned Hasak is talking to Apple TV+ about a series for the streaming service. While the exact show he is developing is not yet known, the creator said he is actively working on a project for it. Apple TV+ is expected to launch next year.] Hasak told The Hollywood Reporter he is currently focused on the series: "I'm looking at how a 10 d0c515b9f4

I have an application that works with table items. I want to have a single database for all users and want to make sure that the data can be restored to a new device (to new device is easier, but the data is also important). I was thinking about saving the table structure in the settings and data in file. Do I have to use a third party library? Or is it feasible to implement it manually? Thanks A: what exactly is it that you are trying to achieve? you mention, the database is for all users, which means it will need to be synchronized. I would recommend talking to a DB framework like Firebase which can store your data and let you have a single instance for all users. You can then have a paid/free or free/paid client.
